WASHINGTON, D.C. - Today, Congressman Chris Murphy (CT-5) announced that Meriden has received $1.24 million from President Obama's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act for Housing and Urban Development Programs.

"My top priority has been getting people in Meriden what they need in these tough economic times. These funds will make a difference in the city, and my hope is that today will mark the beginning of Connecticut's long road to recovery," said Murphy.

Meriden will receive $244,198 for the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG), which enables local governments to undertake a wide range of activities intended to create suitable living environments, provide decent affordable housing, and create economic opportunities, primarily for persons of low and moderate income.

Connecticut will be receiving $3.6 million in CDBG for non-entitlement cities, which don't receive CDBG funds directly from the federal government, but instead receive these funds through a state process.

Meriden will receive $992,309 for Capital Funds to be spent on modernization and development of public housing.
